

Mike is freshman at the UofSC, today is his first day of classes and other than the campus tour he's been on. He isn't really familiar with the campus he is worried he is gonna be late to class on the first day because he doesn't know where the right building is.

After trying to figure out where the building is wasting another five minutes, he decides that he is not going to be able to find the building on his own and decides he going to try and find another student to help him.

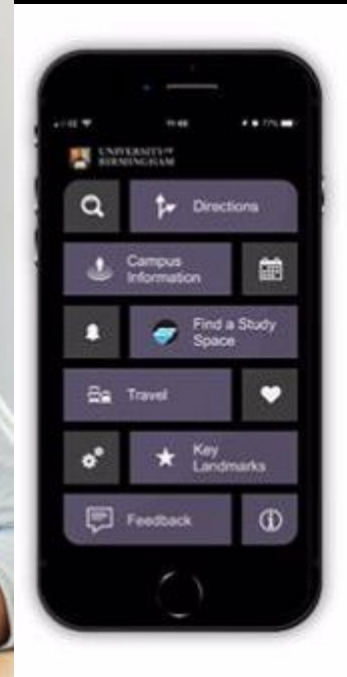

Mikey approaches a fellow student to help find the building his class is in. The student points Mikey in the direction of the building he's looking for but also refers him to the UofSC campus app that helped him get around campus when he was a freshman.

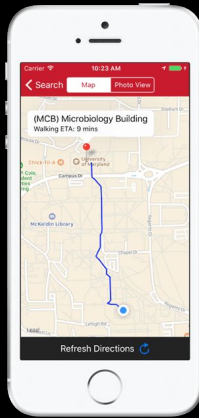

Mikey had to get to get to class because he was running late but after class was dismissed he sat on a bench and downloaded the UofSC campus app to see what it was all about.

Mikey downloaded the app and was so happy after he looked at all the features, the app offered temporary carolina card access, fastest routes to all of Mikey's classes, and finding professors offices.

The next morning Mikey started using the UofSC campus app and had no problem getting around campus with the help of the app.
